Critical Communication Skills and Concepts for Police and Corrections Officers

On April 16, 2012 The Portsmouth Police Department will host a one-day seminar on Identifying Deceptive Behavior. This Nationally Accredited, CALEA Certified Course is presented by Det. Sgt. Dale Sollars (ret.) from the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police Department.

Identifying Deceptive Behavior (IDB)™ is the art of understanding the criminal mindset and their behavior during the interview and interrogation. For over 30 years Dale honed his skills in IDB by interviewing criminals with his IDB technique. He will demonstrate and explain how IDB will help you close more cases!

The principles of IDB are field verified! Identifying Deceptive Behavior goes far beyond what is generally presented in traditional classroom settings. This well-documented class focuses on developing the self-confidence necessary to understand the frequent methods a person utilizes to mislead investigators every day. Through practical application, students utilize a variety of methods to expand the skills required for detecting verbal and nonverbal modes of deception.

Dale has personally trained over 16,000 police officers, probation officers, attorneys and fraud examiners making their assignments easier, safer and more productive. Be sure to join us!

Cost for registration and booklet is $40 per person for this highly interactive and unique class. By attending you will learn to control your interview, close more cases, and quickly identify sociopathic behaviors.

Classes fill quickly, so register soon on the IDB Web Site.
